When people participate in sport, inspiring stories always follow. By working together across the amateur sport ecosystem under the framework of this new 2022-2027 Strategic Plan, we will create new stories that demonstrate the power of inclusive and inspiring sport experiences that contribute to thriving B.C. communities. That is the essence of our plan and the work we must do together.

At the time of finalizing this plan in early January 2022, COVID-19 had a significant operational and financial impact on amateur sport in B.C. Since March 2020, our sector witnessed profound contraction with cancelled events, training, and programming. Uncertainty forced some sport organizations to close or temporarily suspend sport operations. While relief programs from provincial and federal agencies offered a much-appreciated life-line, the next five years will be a critical period for amateur sport to regain and rebuild the momentum that was lost to the pandemic.

During the pandemic, we saw changes within the sport ecosystem emerge, influenced by new social norms, behaviours, and opportunities. Decisions to participate in sport are now considered differently with a new lens on safety, fairness, fees, fun, and appropriate and meaningful skill development. Access to sport for those most impacted by the pandemic including girls and women as well as other underserved and underrepresented communities, requires renewed focus and long-term sector-wide commitment. New sports and sport agencies have entered the arena creating both opportunity for sport growth and also challenges in sport delivery with inconsistent priorities and policies.

Taking a collaborative approach continues to be a priority for viaSport. We have, and will continue to invest considerable time and resources to engage with and understand the needs of all participants and players in the amateur sport ecosystem so that all voices are heard. Suffice to say that the challenges ahead are considerable, but the opportunities for success are even greater.

Amateur sport in BC is made up of hundreds of organizations and tens of thousands of staff, coaches, volunteers, and participants all coming together for the love of sport. And at viaSport, we aspire for sport to be more inclusive, safe, and meaningful. Over the next five years, we will work to support the ecosystem with strategic leadership and help meet the urgent needs of the sector, like increased access to funding, advance policy development, and offer other capacity-building resources. We will strive to be a reliable information hub for the sector and a central agency for everything amateur sport in BC. We will be successful when we convene and collaborate with our sector peers and partners to achieve our common goals and aspirations.

Above all we will leverage the power of sport to advance equity! British Columbians value sport because it can act as an agent of social change. It influences who we are as individuals and as communities. It also contributes to a diversified economy that provides good jobs. British Columbian’s love of sport also provides opportunities for reconciliation with Indigenous communities, advancement in diversity and inclusion, improvements in sport safety, and achievement of a just recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic.

Guided by this strategic plan, and by working together across the sport ecosystem, we will see more B.C. families on the field of play, more fans in the stands, more athletes on the podium, and more sport events in the province.

Let’s all work together…for the love of sport.

Sincerely,

Charlene Krepiakevich, Chief Executive Officer

Rick Ramsbottom, Board Chair

Benefit of Sport

The benefits of sport are undeniable—it supports happier and healthier people, better connected communities. It can act as an agent of social change. It also contributes to a diversified economy. In BC, as articulated in BC Pathways to Sport Strategic Framework 2020-2025 (Pathways), participation in sport, whether it is community-based or high-performance competition, can build a stronger province. Further, viaSport aligns with the global sporting movement to contribute actively to global sustainability by ‘building a better world through sport’.

While the 2022—2027 viaSport plan aligns with Pathways to foster sport participation, athlete development, and sport event hosting, individuals and communities benefit from sport through:

- Improved physical and mental health and well-being
- Enhanced skills, learning, and educational outcomes
- Social connections and safer, more diverse and inclusive communities
- Economic growth
Our Winning Aspiration

Created as a legacy of the Vancouver 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Games, viaSport BC has acted as the Province’s lead agency to steward the growth and development of amateur sport in BC. Over this time, viaSport has evolved to adjust to the needs and issues of the sector and priorities of government. Our aspiration aligns with the vision set out in the BC Pathways to Sport:

Make sport more accessible, inclusive, and safe for all British Columbians while supporting quality economic growth and social development in communities across the province.

To achieve this aspiration, address the challenges, and seize the opportunities, we need bold strategies. And we cannot implement these bold strategies without collaboration, partnership, and engagement with all players across the sport ecosystem.

This strategic plan anchors our work with a renewed vision, mission, purpose, and value statements. Together, these statements provide strategic direction, informing our current and future operational strategies. Let’s all work together...for the love of sport.

viaSport works with 70+ provincial sport organizations to develop safe, inclusive, and meaningful sport experiences, to recruit and train coaches, to implement athlete development programs, and to support community clubs. viaSport works closely with federal, provincial, and municipal governments, and with Indigenous leaders and communities throughout the province. We also partner at the community, provincial and national level with sport sector peers including the Canadian Olympic Committee, Canadian Women and Sport, Canadian Centre for Child Protection, I-SPARC and many more.

- INCLUSION

  We succeed as a team, organization, sport sector, and province when everyone is welcome, feels a sense of belonging, and is given the opportunity to meaningfully contribute and develop.

- ACCOUNTABILITY

  We approach our strategic leadership and coordinating role with sincerity and passion, carrying out our daily actions consistently and responsibly for the love of sport.
A Resilient, Bold Future

Strategic planning provides a forward-focused vision. It is used to prioritize efforts, effectively allocate resources, align organizational goals, and ensure those goals are backed by data and sound reasoning. For non-profit organizations like viaSport BC, strategic planning required consultation and engagement across our sport eco-system. Individuals, staff, Board members, along with national, provincial and regional sport organizations, along with our funder and partner in the Ministry of Tourism, Arts, Culture & Sport, all helped shape this strategic plan. It was crafted to align with the BC Pathways to Sport Strategic Framework 2020-2025 by committing to:

- Support information-driven policy and leadership for system excellence
- Boost Sport Participation
- Strengthen Athlete Development
- Accelerate Sport Event Hosting
- Advance reconciliation with Indigenous peoples and communities
- Foster greater diversity, inclusion and equity in sport
